Choice Poetry.

"ON'T STAY LONG."

A lock of yearning tenderness
Beneath her lashes lies
And hope and love unutterable
Are shadowed in her eyes,
As in some deep unruffled stream
Are clouds and summer skies.

She passed to early womanhood,
From dreamy, sweet girl life,
And crossed the airy threshold but
To find herself a wife:
Oh! gently should he lead her steps
Along the path of life!

And as she clasped her small white hands
Upon his arm so strong,
How often, like a summer sigh,
Or a sweet pleading song,
She whispers with a partial kiss,
"Believ'd one, don't stay long."

It's almost always on her lips,
Her gentlest parting word,
Sweet as the fragrance from leaves
When by soft zephyrs stirred,
And lingering in the memory
Like song of summer birds,

And in his heart they nestle warm,
When other scenes annul;
He stays not till she weary grows,
And her fond eyes are hid
In tears which lie in bitterness
Beneath each veiling lid.

And oh, how many hearts are kept
By that love-uttering song!
There's scarcely one who on life's waves
Is swiftly borne along,
But what has heard from some dear lips
Those sweet words, "Don't Stay Long."

Miscellaneous.

THE SILVER TOKEN.

"THERE Tina!"

Mr. Bruce Medway triumphantly held up two semi circles of silver in the air, so that they might be sure to make a sufficient impression on Ernestine Cady's blue eyes, and smiled with the exultant satisfaction of one who feels that he has accomplished his mission!

He was a bright, earnest-looking young fellow, with gray-brown eyes and a square firm mouth—not handsome, but very manly; and as he sat there on the green woodland bank, with the hair thrown back from his broad forehead, and the sunshine mirrored in his eyes, you felt instinctively that he was one who would make his way in the world, no matter what obstacle might intervene.

Ernestine Cady stood leaning against the gnarled, mossy trunk of an immense chesnut-tree, with her little feet half buried in plumes of nodding, fragrant ferns—a rural picture in blue muslin and fluttering azure ribbons. She was very pretty, with the delicate bloom and freshness of a flower—a flower that winds and frosts have never touched.

"Didn't I tell you I should do it, Tina?"

Ernestine took up the little file that lay on the bank.

"I thought it an impossible task with such an implement as that!"

"Nothing is impossible," returned Bruce sententiously, as he passed a bit of narrow blue ribon through a hole in the broken piece of silver. "Will you let me tie it round your neck, Tina?"

"What for?" But she stooped her pretty head as she spoke, and let him tie the knot beneath a cataract of pale gold curls.

"And I shall wear the other next my heart. They are amulets, Tina—charms, if you choose so to phrase it! That silver piece carries my allegiance with it. Tina, if ever any cloud comes between us—if ever we are separated—"

"Bruce!"

"Such things have happened, dearest; but, nevertheless, in any event, this broken coin shall be a token and a summons to me, wherever I may be—whatever Fate may have in store. Don't look so grave, my little bluebird. Is it so very wrong to mingle a bit of romances in our everyday life? Where are your flowers?—it is time we were returning."

Through the green shifting shadows of the woods, with blood-red streams of sunset light rippling along at their feet, and delicious odors of moss and fern and hidden flowers rising up around, the two lovers walked homeward. Bruce Medway never forgot the brightness of that drowsy August afternoon.

* * * * * * *

"she will come—I am sure she will come!"

The dew lay like a rain of dimonds on grass and shrub, as Bruce walked up and down the little pathway by the hidden spring, watching the round red shield of the rising sun hanging above the eastern horizon. And then he looked at his watch.

"The train will be due in nine minutes. Surely Tina will not let me leave her without one reconciling word! If we could but live the last week over again! Hush! that must be her footstep on the moss."

He stepped forward, with a glad flushed face, and then the chill whiteness of despair blanched every feature, as the bright-eyed little squirrel, whose tiny tread over leaves and acorn-cups had deceived him, glided swiftly across the belt of sunshine into emerald shadow. Bruce Medway stood an instant with his brow contracted and his arms folded on his breast. Was he bidding farewell to the bright summer that was past?

And the shriek of the coming train sounded through the blue purity of the air, and the last, little faint sparkle of hope in the lover's breast died out.

Tina had not come—Tina had forgotten him. Well, so let it be.

And what was Tina Cady doing in the fresh morning brightness?

She was very rosy and pretty in her trim calico dress, with pink ribbons at her throat, and a pink verbena hanging low in her golden coils of hair—very picturesque as she reached up her hand to break off a spray of spicy honeysuckle.

"I wonder if Mr. Bruce Medway has come to his senses yet," thought Tina with a toss of her head. "I shan't measure my actions by the rule and plummet of his lordly will, I can assure him. If I want to flirt with Pierce Marbury I shall do it!"

"So you're up, eh Tina? And, as fresh as a rose, I declare!"

Tina put her red lips up to kiss her bluff old father in an abstracted sort of way. She hardly saw him as he stood there.

"Oh, by the way, Tina, I forgot to give you this note last night—it was left by the hotel porter. Really, I believe my memory isn't quite so good as it was."

Tina caught the note from her father's hand, and broke it open in fevered haste.

"The train leaves at seven!" She saw the words as vividly as if they had been written in characters of jagged fire, and as she read them the old clock half-way up the wide, old-fashioned staircase struck eight.

It was too late—too late!

The sharp thrill of agony at her heart was succeeded by a passionate feeling of resentment.

"Let him go!" she said to herself, while the red pennons fluttered on her cheek. "I would not lift a finger to keep him here!"

So, when Bruce Medway's earnest appealing letter came a day or two afterward Ernestine folded it quietly within a blank envelope, without breaking the seal, and sent it back.

Verily women are strange enigmas, even to themselves! Ernestine herself could scarcely have told why she kept the broken silver coin—but she kept it.

* * * * * * *

The short threatening October day was drawing to a close; the fiery belt across the western sky was flaming sullenly athwart the skeleton woods, and shedding a sort of aureole round Ernestine Cady's slender figure as she hurried on through the yellow, rustling drifts of fallen leaves, carrying the heavy basket on her arm.

Just as pretty as the rosy Tina of two years since, but paler, graver, and more sedate. Trouble had besieged the family since their migration to the grand domains of the Far West. Tina had learned the serious part of life's lesson, and she had learned it well.

She lifted the latch of the rudely constructed log house and entered, with assumed cheerfulness on her face.

"How are you now, father?"

"Better, I think. Come to the fire, Tina—you must be cold!"

"Not a bit. Has mother come back?"

"No; it's very strange she stays so long. I suppose Mrs. Eddetts has a great deal to say, though. I don't wonder your mother is glad to get away from a sick room for a while."

He spoke a little bitterly, and Tina winced as she listened, knowing that her mother had made an excuse of some neighborly errand to dispose in the nearest village of such poor little odds and ends of gold chains, pins, and rings as yet remained to their diminished estate. Was there any thing wrong in this pious fraud? Tina almost felt as if there was!

It was not pleasant to be poor!

"She will be home soon, father," said Tina. "Only see what a basketful of cranberries I have gathered out in the swamps! This will make the barrel ful, and Mr. Signet has promised to send it to New York with his. Don't they look like red jewels, father? And the money will buy you a new coat."

He smiled faintly.

"I think it had better buy my little girl a new dress. Shall I help you to pick them over.

"I had rather do it by myself, father, and you must try to sleep a while."

Half an hour later Tina came through the room, with a scarlet shawl thrown over her head, and a wistful, scared look in her eyes.

"You are not going out again, my child?"

"Only up to the cranberry swamp, father; it isn't dark yet; I—I have lost something."

A ribbon or a collar, I suppose," said Mr. Cady to himself, as he lay watching the crimson glare of the October sunset; while Tina, putting aside low tangled bushes, and searching bits of rank, swampy grass, was repeating to herself, in quick nervous words.

"How could I lose it? Oh, how could I be so careless!"

But the search was all in vain, and the chill twilight sent her home, dispirited and unsuccessful. And Ernestine Cady cried herself to sleep that night, just because she lost the broken silver coin!

* * * * * * *

"You'll be sure to come, Medway? I want to introduce the successful author. You will come?"

"Yes, I will come, if you wish it!"

Bruce Medway went dreamily on his way, and Mrs. Lyman whispered to one of her fashionable friends that "she was quite sure Mr. Medway had been crossed in love—he was so deliciously melancholy!"

The table was superbly spread—Mrs. Lyman's dinners were always comme il faut—and, through the sparkle of cut-glass and translucent glow of painted china, you saw baskets and epergues and pyramidal bouquets of magnificent hot-house flowers. As one of the Beau Brummels of the day had said, "It was like looking at a beautiful picture to dine with Mrs. Lyman."

The dessert was in its first stages, when the pretty hostess leaned coaxingly across to Mr. Medway.

"Do try some of these little cranberry tarts, Mr. Medway; I have just received a barrel of the most delightful cranberries from my dear old Uncle Signet, in Iowa."

Bruce was idly striking his fork into the little crimson circlets, quite unconscious of what he was eating.

"Yes, they are very nice," he said, mechanically. And then he bent down to see what bit of extraneous white element was glimmering through the ruby translucency.

Only a broken silver coin!

He took it out and looked at it, the familiar date and die, all unconscious of the buzz of voices and rings of idle laughter all around him—looked at it with a vague superstitious thrill stealing over all his nature—and he could almost hear his pulses beat under the soft pressure of the other half of this silver piece, for he still wore it next his heart!

"From Iowa, did you say, Mrs. Lyman?"

"From my uncle, Squire Signet, who lives in the Far West."

"What part of Iowa is it that—that produces such a harvest of cranberries?"

"Datersville, I believe, near the Owascen River." And then then the conversation branched off into some different channel. Bruce Medway had found out all that he wished to ascertain on that one occasion.

"A token and a summons to him, wherever he might be! Bruce remembered the words he had spoken two years ago, and his loyal heart gave a great leap as the memory flooded it with warmth and brightness.

* * * * * * *

"Cranberries?—yes—I remember 'em," said old Squire Signet, biting the end of his cedar pencil. "Crop was uncommom good this fall; old Cady's da'ter brought 'em here to sell by the peck."

To sell! Bruce began for the first time to appreciate the tides of trouble that had eddied round the serene little islet of Ernestine's heart.

"Where do they live—Mr. Cady's family, I mean?"

"See that ar' old blasted pine down in the holler? Well, just beyond there a road leads down past Cady's. Won't stop a little longer? Well, good evenin' Squire!"

And Bruce Medway walked down through the orange twilight to where the skeleton arm of the blasted pine seemed to point to the light in a far-off window—walked to meet the dearest treasure of his heart!

Through the uncurtained panes he could see the tiny room all bright and ruddy with cheery fire-light; the slender drooping figure siting alone on the hearth-stone with its golden shine of hair and the thoughtful bend of its neck. And he opened the door softly and went in.

"Tina!"

She put back her hair with both hands, and looked at him as if she fancied herself under the delusion of some spell.

"You summoned me, and I have come. Tina, my love, shall the old time return to us once more? Shall we be all the world to each other once again?"

It was full nine o'clock by the silver-studded time-piece of the stars before Bruce Medway rose to take his departure.

"But tell me one thing, Bruce," said Ernestine, laying her hand lightly on his, as they stood protracting their lover-like adieux on the door stone in the frigid moonlight, "what did you mean when you said I had summoned you?"

He drew a little box from his breast-pocket, and smiling held up a bit of silver.

"And I wear its mate close to my heart, Tina!"

"Bruce—surely that is not my half of the coin?"

"It was your half, Tida."

"And where did you find it?"

"One of these days I will tell you, dear—not in a very romantic juxtaposition, however. You remember what I said to you when we divided the silver piece between us?"

As if Tina had forgotten one word or syllable of those old days!

The iron hand of time has swept away all those tokens of lang syne now. Mr. Medway is a middle-aged, bald head member of society, and Mrs. Medway has white hair mixed in the golden brightness of her braids; but she keeps the worn bit of silver and its sweet associations still, and believes most firmly in true love and romance.

A Western Editor Describes Pittsburgh.

A WESTERN editor thus describes the effect produced by the numerous foundries, iron works, etc., at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania:

"Pittsburgh people never have fresh air, except when out of town. They live on coal smoke and floating cinders. We inhaled seven tons of coal the first hour, we were there. The people breathe smoke, eat smoke, chew smoke and carry it loose in their pockets. It is now seventy-two years since Pittsburgh has been warmed or reached by the sun's rays. Once a streak of sunshine, for several years condensing, undertook to penetrate the cloud of smoke over the city, got lost, became smoked, and fell like a standing edition of the Black Crook.

"The ladies use smoke and coal-dust to protect their complexion. Little boys and girls stand on the corners with wet brooms and sponges to wash people's faces for five cents. Everybody is of a color in Pittsburg. At the post-office window the clerks distinguished people by certain signs, it being impossible to see their faces from the layers of coal-dust and smoke. We saw a little boy crying on the street because he had lost his father, who was six feet ahead of him, in all the blackness.

"Every one wears mourning in Pittsburg. A barber once went there to color hair and whiskers. He mor'n busted in a week! Men kiss each others wives in Pittsburg, unable to tell which is their own only by the taste. Women send children on errands, first writing on their faces with a thumb-nail or wet stick. People feel their way by door-knobs, and read by raised type.

"A man once stood in his room with the window raised—changed his shirt nine times in four minutes, and only got a clean one on him when the window fell by accident and kept the smoke out.

"Meet a man with a cold who has been blowing his nose, and that organ looks much like a burnt stump on each side of which a wood-chuck has been burrowing.

"A man there accused his wife of presenting him with a nigger baby. She proved her innocence of so loyal a 'who's been here' by plunging the little innocent into a cistern with a lantern tied to his neck. The husband saw dimly, recognized Saxon out-line, clasped his wife to his bosom, and held her there so long in joyful embrace that the little cuss in the cistern was drowned, the lamp went out, and a boy lost forever.

"Bed clothes are unknown in Pittsburg—leave the window open and sheets of smoke settle upon you like newspapers from a machine press! Some years since some snow fell into the city from the cloud of smoke—the smoke was not hurt, but the snow looked sick! Men carry lanterns to see to shake hands. When looking at a watch to see the hour it is the fashion to light a match. They make black broadcloth by hanging a spider's web out till filled with smoke, and use hot coal dust for pepper. They roll the smoke, sweetened, cut into sticks, and sell it for licorice."

JOHN JACOB ASTOR.—"Do you ever trust, Mr. Astor?" inquired Mr. K.

"I do not credit strangers, sir, unless they furnish satisfactory city reference," was the reply.

"Then," quoth Mr. K., "the skins I have selected must suffice this time;" and paying for the same, departed.

On the afternoon of the same day, just before the sailing of the New Bedford Packet, the young trader returned for his lot of furs. Throwing the whole pack of furs upon his back, he left the store, but had not proceeded a dozen yards when Mr. A. called his name, bidding him come back.

"Sir," said Mr. A., "you can have credit for any amount of goods you require providing they are to be found in my store."

"But—" stammered Mr. K., "but my dear sir, I can give you no city reference—I am a stranger here."

"I ask no further recommendation," replied the rich merchant, "than that already furnished by yourself. The man who is not above his business need never be afraid to apply to John Jacob Astor for assistance."

Thus commenced a trade between two merchants, which continued to the mutual satisfaction and advantage of both for a long term of years. Mr. K. is now one of the most eminent capitalists in New Bedford.

DYING IN BATTLE.—If there be anything frightful, if there exist a reality that surpasses dreaming, it is this: to live to see the sun; to be in full possession of manly vigor; to have health and joy; to laugh valiantly; to turn toward a glory glittering before you; to feel in your chest, lungs that breathe, a heart that beats, and a will that reasons; to speak, to think, to hope, to love; to have a mother a wife, and children; to have light—and then suddenly, before there is time for a cry, to be hurled into an abyss; to fall, roll crash, and be crushed; to see cornstalks, flowers, leaves and branches, and to be unable to hold on to any thing; to feel your sabre useless, men under you and horses over you; to struggle in vain; to have your ribs fractured by some kick in the gloom; to feel a heel on your eyes; to bite with rage the horses' bits; to stiffe, to yell, to writhe; to be underneath, and to say to yourself, "A moment ago I was a living man!"

Address of the Democratic State Committee.

DEMOCRATIC STATE COM. ROOMS,
901 AND 903 ARCH ST. PHIL'A.

TO THE DEMOCRACY OF PENN'A

You have fought a good fight.

You have polled a larger vote than ever before; have reduced the Radical majority of 1866 by nearly one-half, and have proven the immortality of your principles and the vitality of your organization.

Radicalism has carried the State by means of the grossest outrage; by openly and corruptly buying thousands of voters; by driving from the polls foreign-born citizens regularly naturalized many years since; by rejecting the votes of thousands who were legally made citizens in the Court of Nisi Prius; by violating and trampling upon the seal of that Court—a recognized symbol of the law; by deterring legal voters from approaching the polls through threatened penalties for imaginary offences; and by the despotic and unscrupulous use of power by election officers in Radical Districts.

Under the specious charge of fraud upon your part, Radicalism has perpetrated the vilest frauds. Thousands of voters have been colonized, paupers assessed and voted, repeaters hired and voted five times in Radical precincts, returns of election altered and manipulated to suit their own purposes, and fraudulent naturalization papers issued by the ream.

In the contest just closed you have learned their capacity for violence and wrong, you have tested the strength of their organization and discovered the weak points in your own.

With the experience thus gained in the school of adversity, we will go forward to victory.

The enemy are yet to be taught that outrage and fraud, violence and wrong cannot be perpetrated with impunity; they have yet to learn that you are neither dismayed nor demoralized, and that in the pursuit of the right you know no such word as fail.

Arouse the people once more for the conflict. Bring to the polls every Democratic vote. For right and justice give back right and justice. For outrage and wrong return the full measure of swift retribution.

The work to be done is no holiday sport. It is the last battle for the salvation of the Republic, the preservation of the Constitution, and the supremacy of your race.

Work and fight as men engaged in such a cause should work and fight.

By order of the Democratic State Committee,

WILLIAM A. WALLACE,
Chairman.

Attention.

See to it that every Democrat is assessed at once. Every Democrat is interested in this, and should seek the assessor and have the persons entitled properly assessed. Next week will be too late.

Outrageous Murder.

MR. ALEXANDER REA, of Centralia, one of our best citizens, was foully murdered on last Saturday. The facts as near as we can gather them are as follows:

On Saturday morning last he was driving over to the Colliery of the Locust Mountain Coal and Iron Company, of which he was Agent, it is supposed for the purpose of finishing the payment of the hands which had not been completed the day before. When about a mile from Centralia it is supposed he stopped at a watering trough to water his horse, and while doing this was attacked. Six bullets penetrated his body; two through his left breast, two through his neck, and the other two through his head. The pistols were evidently held close to his face as it was considerably burned with powder. The body was then carried about 200 yards into the woods and concealed under a bush. About $500.00 are supposed to have been taken from his body, besides a gold watch.

The horse was also led into the woods and tied, but towards night it must have been released or it could not have regained the road. A couple of men seeing it without a driver, got in and took it to Centralia, whereupon the alarm was given, and an immediate search began. The body was not found until Sunday morning.

Active efforts are being made to arrest the villains and it is to be hoped they will be brought to justice. That such a crime should be perpetrated in broad day-light, and within sight of Centralia, is a startling fact, and should arouse all citizens to an attempt to ferret out the criminals.

The deceased was a man of unblemished reputation, an active business man, and universally beloved. He leaves a widow and six children.

Congress.

THE following are the majorities in the several counties of this Congressional District:

| | Piollet. | Mercur. |
|---|---|---|
| Bradford, | | 3480 |
| Columbia, | 1906 | |
| Montour, | 494 | |
| Sullivan, | 380 | |
| Wyoming, | 900 | 3170 |
| Mercur's majority, | | 310 |

The above statement may be slightly changed by official returns, but it is substantially accurate. Columbia and Montour are official.

These figures look bad for Mercur. He had more than 1,300 majority in '64 over Piollet, and in 1866 more than 1,200 over Judge Elwell.

Election Gossip.

THE great increase of vote (116) in the Bloom district surprised both parties, and when the polls closed both were fearful of an unfavorable result! The vote was, doubtless a fair one; but it was beyond expectation. When the ballots were counted off the Democrats and Conservatives were pleased to learn that their majority of last year was fully maintained and that it was proved that upon a full vote they could control the District. There was much activity during the day at the polls, but generally good temper and good conduct.

The first township heard from on election night was Mount Pleasant, and the report from her was most welcome. In fact the figures were elegant. Upon a vote increased but 20 over the vote of 1866, the majority was increased 24! The Democratic vote of the township had gone up from 91 to 116, while the Radical vote had fallen off from 64 to 62!

In the following townships, as shown by the returns subsequently received, there was also a falling off in the Radical vote: to wit—Briarcreek, 11; Orange, 6; Roaringcreek, 2; and Sugarloaf, 4. Inasmuch as the vote in the county was a full one beyond any former example, we have here proof of changed votes and not merely of an increased Democratic vote. In all these districts except Sugarloaf, there was a fine increase of the anti-Radical vote.

During election evening a Radical gain of 17 was reported from Scott twp. and by telegraph similar gains in Berwick and Catawissa—16 in the former and 5 in the latter. These were all points where money power could be brought to bear upon the election, and that power was used. There were no changes of honest opinion against us in those districts; there was simply an application of influence by capital upon labor. The Catawissa railroad shops and the works of Jackson & Woodin at Berwick, in particular, were manipulated in the interest of the Radical party; but the effect thus produced upon the general result in the county was but slight. The current of independent and patriotic opinion in the county was too strong to be resisted by manager or manufacturer in those establishments. In Bloom we have become accustomed to see pitted against us the whole power of the "Railroad Iron Company" located here. Its employees are steadily polled as a party force and the operation superintended and controlled with as much of regularity and skill as the ordinary business of the Company. But that power is now neutralized or overborne by the increase of independent voters amongst us.

It soon became evident, as the returns came in, that the majority in the county would be very large; but expectation did not grasp the completeness of the result achieved. Several of the outer districts were not heard from until Friday.

Where so many districts have done well it seems almost invidious to mention a part of them for commendation. But Conyngham, Orange, Fishingcreek, Briarcreek, Locust, Benton, Hemlock and Madison have contributed so heavily to our triumph that they must be named for special praise. Among the smaller townships Beaver, Main, Jackson, Pine, Roaringcreek and little Montour, have done nobly. The vote in Greenwood we consider a good one, and that of Bloom most honorable and satisfactory, considering the influences to be resisted and overcome.

But there is a reserve vote, unpolled at the late election, in Mifflin, Centre and Sugarloaf. It may not be very large in either, but whatever it is it should be made available at future elections.

Mercur, for Congress, runs behind his party, and the majority against him in the county is within 4 votes of 2,000. His majority in the District is nearly wiped out. In this connection we may turn for amusement to the "Columbia County Republican" of Sept. 17, and read the following foolish prognostication of the editor:

"That he" (Mercur) "will be elected by an increased majority there is no question."

Gen. Ent received in the county about 65 Republican votes, which puts his majority up to 2126. These were given him upon personal grounds and his vote is not therefore to be taken as an exact test of party strength. But the votes for Boyle and Piollet do constitute a complete test, and they prove—that our party majority upon a full vote is now a round 2,000—that the county is soundly "reconstructed" upon a loyal basis—AND THAT DR. JOHN HAS FULLY ACCOMPLISHED HIS MISSION.

Eternal Vigilance

is the price of liberty. The Radicals are staggered; follow them up by a solid vote on November 3d, and the victory is ours. Don't relax your efforts a moment, the October skirmish is not the battle. Close up your ranks and let the whole line advance.

1983

HURRAH BOYS—Keep the ball rolling and the majority still increasing. Make it 2000 at least.

To Dr. WM. H. BRADLEY, who has taken editoral charge of the Columbia Co Republican, we extend the right hand of fellowship. We think he has energy, zeal and independence and will give his best efforts to elevate and improve the character of the paper. "So mote it be."

THE vote given to Gen. W. H. Ent in this county does him honor, and is very gratifying to his friends. When the full returns of the election are published we have no doubt it will be found that he has run ahead of the vote of his party in most of the counties of the State. He has in these heard from.

DANIEL W. VOORHEES of Indiana is elected to Congress by a close vote. It will be remembered that he was Deprived of his seat in the 39th Congress by an iniquitious decision of the House of Representatives. That wrong is now corrected by the people.

NEGRO VOTING.—The people of Ohio last year defeated negro suffrage by over 50,000 majority, yet in defiance of law and popular will, 8,000 negro votes were received by Radical election boards in the Western Reserve of Ohio. Negroes also voted in Cincinatti.

M'KELVY, NEAL & Co., have just received an unusually large stock of goods. See their stock before the best are gone.

The Game of Brag.

"THE work of organization in this county goes bravely on. The Republicans of old Columbia are now preparing, one and all, to move in solid columns on the enemy's works."—Republican, Aug. 27th.

The movement was not to be a mere reconoisance but a direct attack—upon the enemy's works—in columns—in solid columns—by the Radicals of old Columbia—one and all! No straggling allowed, no desertions possible. The work was to proceed bravely forward, with glory in prospect and the Doctor in command!

The week following (Sept. 3rd.) 26 meetings were advertised and the Doctor announced that he had made "five public addresses in different parts of the county since his last issue," and that "the people were awakening."(sic) No less than "five meetings" had been held on the Saturday evening before: He "alluded to the fact as an evidence of the spirit being aroused in old Columbia." He had "had the pleasure of addressing the Orangeville Grant and Colfax Club on Saturday Evening. His Radical friends there "were in earnest and were active." (Orange gives a Democratic gain of 49 compared with the vote of 1866!) And other gallant spirits beside himself had been in service. "The Grant and Colfax Club of Mount Pleasant had been addressed (also on Saturday evening) by Capt. Whitmoyer and Mr. Beckley, and the Republicans of that township were at work." (The Democratic gain in Mt. Pleasant is 24!) He was also delighted by the fact that "membership to the Grant and Colfax Club of Bloomsburg was increasing. New additions were made at every meeting." (The Democratic gain over 1866, in Bloom, is 86!) But there was a other circumstance of gratification. Not only were the people "awakening," and "aroused," "earnest and active," "at work," and "moving in solid columns on the enemy's works," but a champion of the opposite party had been actually encountered and subdued. Hear him.

"The disensions of Capt. Whitmoyer with Capt. Brockway are having an excellent effect. The former is dealing staggering blows to the latter, both right and left, which cannot fail to be productive of much good to our cause."

Those "staggering blows" one would think should have been decisive upon the result of the election. At all events, delivered "right and left" and being so effectual, we are surprised that the Doctor does not describe them as "stunners" and "settlers!"

But he did better than to dwell on this topic, interesting though it was. The political situation in "Old Columbia" was to be made known abroad and he announced it as follows:

"The Republicans of Columbia send greeting to their friends everywhere. We are awake and at work. Our watch fires never burned brighter so early in the canvass as they do to-day. Our rank and file were never more zealous, more confident, nor more active."—(Republican Sept. 3.)

Yes! "every thing was lovely and the goose ——" but we must stop our quotations from the Doctor for fear of lowering the tone of our columns. Suffice it to say that there was great confidence and much fussy activity in the Radical camp, little squibs of personality and slang mixed with brag overflowed the columns of the Radical organ and the "little negro-equality orators were let loose upon the people of the county. The county was to be "reconstructed," Mercur vindicated, and blows "right and left" were to confound the Democracy.

Alas, that biting frost should succeed the beautiful summer—that human expectations should be doomed to disappointment—that even prophecy should fail and the prophets themselves be put to open shame!

The Result.

THE smoke of the recent contest has cleared away sufficiently for us to examine our losses and gains, and to consider what we must do in the future. In Indiana the Republicans carried the election by 1,000 majority, a loss of 14,000 on the last general election. We have also elected Voorhees to Congress, which is a gain of 1 in the delegation of that State. In Ohio, in 1864, the Republican majority was 60,000, and although the vote has been much increased we have reduced their majority to 18,000, and made a gain of 3 Congressmen. One of the defeated candidates is Ashley, the "great impeacher."

In Pennsylvania, out of an increased vote over 1866 of about 50,000 we have not only received half of them, but have cut Geary's majority down one-half, making a substantial gain of 9,000. We have gained as least 3 Congressmen besides carrying the City of Philadelphia. This, so far as the future is concerned, is more important than the success of the State ticket, as it places all the patronage of the City in our hands. Its 1200 policemen can no longer be used against us as they have been in the past.

In order to secure success our opponents disfranchised over 6,000 naturalized citizens, besides colonizing heavily from other States. Money was lavishly expended, and every man who had a price was bought.

This cannot be repeated in November. Each State then votes at the same time, and cannot send recruits to this State. Our naturalized citizens will then get their rights. Money will not be so lavishly expended.

We then say to our friends, be up and doing. We have made serious breaches in the enemy's lines, and let us make one more charge and victory is ours. Our army is stronger than ever, and our opponents are weaker. They have bought all whom money can touch, and our forces are composed of true and tried men, who will not desert in the face of the enemy, and who would rather suffer defeat in struggling for Right, than be triumphant in supporting wrong.

Only 5,000 votes out of 650,000 are necessary to insure victory. Philadelphia can give us over half that number, and Columbia county can do 100 better than she did. We are now the banner county, and let us not lose that proud position by indolence and inactivity. "Up guards and at them."

The Democratic Party

is the only Constitutional party. It alone is battling for the rights of the people, against the usurpations of the governing power. We owe it to humanity and to the principles of free government throughout the world to talk and work and vote against centralization and despotism. Up guards and at them!

Doctor Palemon John.

THE Columbia County Republican passes into new hands, its late proprietor having been driven from the field. This is an event of sufficient importance to justify some gossip in a country village and some consideration in the local press.

For 12 years Doctor Palemon John—(a rather singular name, by the way)—has conducted what has been successively a Whig, Republican and Radical newspaper, and by diligent effort has brought it to a respectable circulation and to some degree of local importance. But he has been unfortunate in failing to conciliate opinion in his own party, and in view of increasing Democratic majorities in the county and particularly of the great one at the recent election, he has been forced to retire.

Notwithstanding very good grounds of objection to him as the conductor of a newspaper, he has our sympathy in his enforced retirement. That faithful and sincere efforts to advance party interests should go unappreciated or be met by distrust and ingratitude, appears unnatural and hard; and that a party should hold its faithful servant responsible for its unpopularity and disasters, seems to be the heighth of injustice. There can be no doubt that the Doctor has done his best, in his way, to advance the interests of Radicalism and make it palatable to the people of Columbia county. The difficulty of his task should be taken into account, and he should not be held responsible for its failure.

We say he has done his best, in his way, to advance the interests of his party; but that way is open to observation from other than party points of view. No doubt the COLUMBIAN newspaper under its former and its present conductors has produced a real reform in journalism in this county. In consequence of its establishment the other newspapers here were enlarged and improved and additional enterprize infused into their management. Competition produced a higher grade of merit; stagnation was prevented, and business ideas obtained in their conduct to a greater extent than before. But neither our predecessor nor ourselves, notwithstanding our best efforts, have been able to bring the Doctor's newspaper fully up to the proper standard of excellence. By reason of some defect of intellect or of education he has been unable to rise with the necessities of the times to the proper standard of journalism; and to this cause we attribute, in part, his present retirement.

We must be permitted to point out briefly, a particular or two of malconduct in his career as a journalist; of course not for the mere purpose of censure, but for purposes of instruction.

In the first place, the Dr. has been addicted to personalities; quite unjustifiable; injurious to himself and of fensive to others. This habit has been inveterate and apparently incapable of amendment. We do not refer so much to the incivility of his allusions to contemporaries of the press (including ourselves) as to his abuse of rivals and private citizens. Now it is a n abuse of journalism to make it an instrument of private spite and hostility. Its main function is educational, and it should be subjected to a rigid law of good manners and subserve public rather than private objects. We could name at once, from recollection, a dozen or more of our citizens, men of great respectability and merit, who have been made the subjects of editorial animosity and subjected to insult. A favorite form of impertinence with him has been to assign nicknames to such persons and thus make them objects of derision. The indulgence of this unamiable habit of course leads to positive falsehood and injustice; for no man can thus indulge his malignant passions, regardless of other men's feeling or reputation, and continue to regard the demands of justice and the obligations of truth. The statement of this matter is by no means a pleasant task to us, but this man must not leave the editorial chair "in the odor of sanctity," and with his evil example, unrebuked, as a legacy to his successors. The selection of one recent example will justify our language. A leading member of our bar, honorable and estimable in both professional, and private life, and who without his solicitation or instrumentality of his own supplanted the Dr. in a public office, has been repeatedly made the object of foul and unjust abuse. Nor has falsehood been wanting to sharpen the darts of invective. The exhibition of combined malignity and meanness in this instance has been shameful if not disgusting.

There is a word in the English language for which there is no synonym—no equivalent—which very often rises to the mind of an intelligent reader in perusing the Doctor's incubrations upon men and affairs. That word is "swing." If there were no definition of this word extant, a lexicographer would have no difficulty in obtaining one by resorting to a must any number of the Columbia County Republican issued within the last 12 years. He would there find a richness and a fulness of information upon the characters and uses of the thing signified by this term, which would delight and surprise him, and render all further research unnecessary.

Last week the Doctor sent up a cry of distress, premonitory of woe that has since occurred. He protested that he had "never attempted to direct the policy of his party, to control its patronage, or rule its organization." But his Republican critics hold to a very different opinion and with a show of reason. He took the office of Post Master at Bloomsburg when his party came into power in 1861 and held it for several years. When a more profitable office—that of Assessor of Internal Revenue—was within reach, he seized that and turned over the Post Office appointment to his assistant editor—a new man amongst us. In appropriating to himself the Assessorship he displaced Major Monroe, a member of his own party, who has never been able to see the propriety of his ejection or fairness in the means by which it was accomplished.

The Doctor has been misled on many occasions in his career, by undue self-appreciation and by inordinate love of gain. The latter characteristic is too notorious to require illustration. The former is well exhibited in his valedictory to his patrons and in previous effusions where the topic was his own performances and achievements as editor of a party organ and manager of party action.

It remains only to mention two circumstances connected with the Doctor's retirement. Before the election Mercur was waited upon by leading Republicans of Columbia and Montour and the condition made with him that the Dr. was not to have an office or control appointments in case of Radical success. This understanding secured Mercur some votes.

When the result of the election in this county became known, the radical leaders, discouraged and exasperated, waited upon the doctor and demanded that he should sell out and leave. That event hastaken place and been dulyannounced; not however with a frank and manly statement of its causes but with the suggestion that the Doctor's health is impaired by his arduous labors. He retires simply to recuperate; to obtain "rest, recreation, peace." That these blessings may come to him in due measure; that he may live to repent what is amiss in his past career and that his successor may be as unlike him as possible, is the earnest wish of all his brethren of the Press and of this whole community.

GENERAL ELECTION PROCLAMATION

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT & VICE-PRESIDENT.

WHEREAS, by the laws of this Commonwealth it is made the duty of the Sheriff of every county to give notice of the general Election, by publication in one or more newspapers in the county, at least, twenty days before the election, and to enumerate the officers to be elected, and to designate the places at which the electors is to be held.

I therefore, I, MORRIS A. MILLARD, High Sheriff of Columbia county, do hereby make known and proclaim to the qualified electors of Columbia county, that a general Election will be held on TUESDAY, THE THIRD DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1868, (being the first Tuesday in said month,) at the several districts within the county, to wit:

Beaver township, at the public house of Benj. Zarr.

Benton township, at the public house of Andrew Hartman, in that town of Buck Horn.

Bloom township, at the Court House, in Bloomsburg.

Borough of Berwick, at the Town House, in the said borough.

Briarcreek township, at the public house of Samuel Kostenbader, in the town of Creasyville.

Catawissa township, at the public house of Daniel Leiby, on the road to Rupert.

Centre township, at the public house of Andrew Greenwood township, at the public house of Jacob Patton.

Hemlock township, at the public house of Abraham Hartman, in that town of Buck Horn.

Jackson township, at the public house of Daniel Lenhart, in the town of Jerseytown.

Locust township, at the public house of Samuel Yeager, in Stanton.

Madison township, at the public house of Aaron Rees, in the town of Mainville.

Madison township, at the public house of Christopher Kinney, in Jerseytown.

Mt. Pleasant township, at the house of H. V. Welrick.

Montour township, at the house of Wm. Boring-Hemlock.

Main township, at the public house of ——— Gearhart.

Roaringcreek township, at the house formerly occupied by George Dreisbach.

Orange township, at the public house of John Snyder, in Orangeville.

Pine township, at the Centre School House lately known as one of the election districts of Franklin township, at the public house of C. H. Deibler, in Espy.

It is further directed that the election polls of the several districts shall be opened between the hours of eight and ten o'clock in the forenoon, and continue open without intermission and adjournment until seven o'clock in the evening when the polls shall be closed.

It is further directed that the meeting of the returning judges at the Court House, in Bloomsburg, to make out a General Return shall be held on Tuesday the Third day of November next.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN,

That every person excepting Justices of the Peace who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the United States, or of this State, any city or corporation district, or who is a member of congress, or of the State Legislature, or chief officer or agent who is or shall be employed under the Legislature, or any city or county department of this State, or any city or county commissioner, or who is a member of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any district, is not eligible to the office of Judge, Inspector or Clerk of any election of this commonwealth, and that all such votes, if given for any officer of such election shall be ineligible to be then voted for.

It shall be the duty of the several Assessors respectively to attend at the place of holding every such election, between the hours of eight and ten o'clock in the forenoon of the day of the election aforesaid, for the purpose of giving information to the inspectors and Judges, when called upon, in relation to the right of any person assessed by them to vote at their respective districts, and on such other matters touching the qualifications of voters as may be necessary to enable the Judges to decide upon the same.

"No person shall be permitted to vote at any election as aforesaid, that a state citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have resided in this State at least one year, and in the election district where he offers to vote ten days immediately preceding such election, and within two years paid a State or county tax which shall have been assessed at least ten days before the election. But a citizen of the United States who has previously been a qualified voter of this State and returned home to this State, shall have resided in the election district aforesaid, and paid taxes as aforesaid, shall be entitled to vote after residing in this State six months. Provided, That the Militia in the service of the United States, or this State, shall not be deprived of the right of suffrage by reason of their absence from their respective districts."

Every person who shall give or receive, directly or indirectly, any money or ticket or other thing to influence the vote of any elector, or for the purpose of procuring or preventing the return of any person to serve as an inspector, judge or clerk of any election, shall forfeit the sum of five hundred dollars to the use of the county, and moreover shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the Court of Quarter Sessions of the county, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, and undergo an imprisonment not exceeding one year.

Given under my hands at my office in Bloomsburg this 3d day of October, 1868.

MORRIS A. MILLARD, Sheriff.

HARTRANFT's majority in the State is between 9,000 and 10,000. Geary's majority was 17,178.

A COMMITTEE waited on P. John and gave him notice that "his time had come." Exit, Palemon.

ON Saturday morning last there was a slight fall of snow. On the night of the same day considerable ice was formed.

THE men who have been fighting P. John for a few years, have finally forced him to retire. They are going to run the machine.

SOLD.—Samuel Everett has sold his Hotel stand at Orangeville to Rohr M Henry for $3,500. The latter has made a good bargain.

CAPT. C. B. BROCKWAY will address the citizens of New Columbus and vicinity on the duties of the hour next Tuesday evening. A general invitation is extended.

A DEMOCRATIC meeting, respectable in numbers was held at Swisher's Tannery, Madison township, on Monday afternoon, Oct. 12, which was addressed by Senator Buckalew.

ELLWOOD HUGUS will sell at public Vendue at his residence near Fowlersville on Thursday and Friday the 5th and 6th days of November 1868 all his stock, farming implements and household goods. 3t

AN interesting meeting was held at Thompson's Hall, Danville, Saturday evening, October 17, which was addressed by Capt. Brockway. The Democracy of Montour will maintain their fine vote obtained at the late election.

DURING the campaign we were told that Columbia county was to be reconstructed; but it turns out that it was the Columbia County Republican that needed reconstruction:

Farewell P. J.—— ne'er shall we see,
A foolish fellow that shall equal thee!

CORRECTION.—Last week we printed a communication from H. Gray, on the subject of "Oral Arithmetic." The first solution closed with the word "second cup," and should have read first cup. We make the correction at the instance of our correspondent.

"THIS county will be 'reconstructed' in a not very distant day."—Republican, Aug. 27.

The prophecy has been promptly fulfilled! 1,983 for Boyle! 1996 for Piollet!! 2126 for Ent!!! We rather like this "reconstruction" and are inclined with poor Oliver "in the story, to ask "for more!"

LOST.—The undersigned, on Monday evening, October 12th, between Bloomsburg and Light Street lost a book called "McPherson's Hand Book of Politics for 1868." At the time, it was tied up in a newspaper. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at the Columbian Office. C. B. Brockway. 2t

PRESENTATION.—On Wednesday night of last week, Miss Allie Welsh on behalf of the ladies of Bloomsburg presented to the Order of United American Mechanics, at this place, a large and splendidly bound Bible for the use of the Society. Her neat and pertinent address was responded to in behalf of the Order by Dr. J. R. Evans.

WE are informed on what we consider good authority, that Low's boys in Centre township, notified all their workmen, that those who voted the Democratic ticket on the 13th of October, would be discharged. If it is true, there are no words in the language strong enough to show the contempt every true man should have for them. Indeed they are beneath contempt.

FIRE.—On last Thursday night during the Radical jubilee on Market Square, the stable of Henry Hartman was discovered to be on fire. The night was perfectly calm, so that the flames did not spread. The little "Rescue" was promptly on hand, and aided materially in subduing the fire. It evidently began in the hay-mow, and was either the work of an incendiary, or a chance spark from the Republican bonfire.

A RUNAWAY.—On Monday afternoon while Miss Eva Rupert was driving her father's horses down Market Street, they became frightened, and at Mr. Waller's corner ran against a tree, and then the wheel struck a hitching post, throwing Miss Rupert out on the boardwalk. She is considerably bruised, but it is hoped has escaped serious injuries. The horses were caught by running against a tree. The buggy is badly shattered, the tongue and swingle trees broken and the harness torn in tatters.

DRUM CORPS.—One of the many attractions at our late Fair was the parade in uniform of the "Rescue" and "Friendship" engine companies of this place headed by the Drum Corps of Protection Hose Company No. 1 of Wilkes Barre under command of Elisha Herring. The town of Bloomsburg never heard drumming equal to it, nor can it be excelled in the State. Our citizens were much gratified at the display. Why cant we have a Drum Corps in Bloomsburg?

RADICAL JOLLIFICATION.—On last Thursday evening the Radicals of this place having come to the conclusion they were not beaten in the state, ordered out the band, and after stealing a lot of dry-goods boxes, had a bon-fire in Market Square. P. John, Dan. Beckley Sam. Knorr, and Mike Whitmoyer displayed their eloquence to the crowd, and told them how they had contributed to the success of the Radical ticket. Of the 1996 majority in this County they said nothing.

As Robinson was about to ventilate himself, the cry of "fire" was raised, and the crowd adjourned to Hartman's stable.

The intended programme of visiting Democrats with a Salt River boat was not carried out from prudential motives.

A GOOD spring wagon for sale. Call at L. T. Sharpless' store. *

IT seems that catnip would not do,
To "reconstruct" the voters true
Who swarm Columbia Co., through:
And nineteen hundred eighty-one
Petarded our poor friend P. John,
Whose owners seek another man
And try the "allopathic" plan!

BRADFORD county gives a total vote of 11,429, Mercur 7,480, Piollet 4 049, making a majority for the former of 3,480. Piollet runs ahead of the Democratic State ticket and his candidacy aided us in Bradford. The greatly increased vote in that county has saved Mercur from inglorious defeat, but his lean majority is a virtual condemnation.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A young man by the name of Washington Trowbridge was accidently killed, by the discharge of a gun in the hands of Daniel Myers, on Sunday last, while out hunting in Centre township, Columbia county. It is reported that when in the act of getting over a fence Myer's gun lock struck a rail, putting off the load, which took effect in the breast of Trowbridge, killing him instantly. The deceased was about 21 years of age. There were three in the party hunting. An inquest was held over the body and the verdict rendered was in accordance with the above facts. This is another sad warning to Sabbath breakers. The seventh day should be respected and kept holy. No good ever comes out of a violation of holy writ.—Democrat.

THE FAIR.—The weather opened inauspiciously on Wednesday of last week, the day being cloudy, damp and chilly. But few visitors were in attendance, but exhibitors were busy arranging their goods so as to display them to the best advantage, and our townsmen were busy arranging booths, stands, and tables, for the purpose of supplying the expected throng with catabes of all kinds from roast turkeys down to peanuts.

On Thursday a large crowd gathered in, new carriages and old ones, plow horses and fast trotters, were alike brought into requisition. The pea-nuts disappeared at an alarming rate, and colored lemonade was in active demand. Old flirtations were renewed, old times and reminiscences were recalled, and "all went merry as a marriage bell." The Bloomsburg Brass Band at appropriate intervals discoursed its sweetest strains. The fat woman, the Lilliputian Queen, and the Circassian girl, displayed themselves as usual, and high above all was heard the cry of patent medicine venders, who offered to kill or cure on the spot.

We have not the space to speak in detail of the goods, and animals exhibited. While the number and quality was fair, we are of the opinion that many of our citizens do not appreciate the importance of contributing their share towards the general good. We need better and more permanent buildings, not only for the convenience of the people, but for the security and proper display of the articles. We also think it is a mistake to permit itinerant cockeys to monopolize the track three-fourths of the time. It is also unjust to our land-lords that tables should be spread on the grounds without the payment of licenses. The recipts were over $2,200

Our citizens should not only preserve their membership tickets, but be active in attendance upon all meetings of the Society and upon all occasions endeavor to advance its interests. The list of awards will be found in another column.

THE majority for Boyle in this County has been erroneously reported at 1981. The footing up shows it to be 1983.

ANOTHER COUNTERFEIT.—A very skillfully executed counterfeit $10 note on the Third National Bank of Philadelphia is in circulation. Look out for it.

UPON the announcement within a few days of P. John's retirement from the Republican and probable resumption of medical practice, the price of catnip rose largely in the market.

JAMES M. ASHLEY who originated Impeachment in the House of Representatives, is defeated for reelection in the Toledo district, Ohio. This is a most righteous judgment upon a bad man.

THE Appletons, Publishers of New York, have given to Bishop Beckwith of Georgia, $20,000 to found an Orphan's Asylum, at Macon, under the auspices of the Episcopal Church.

THE Division of the Diocese of Pennsylvania on the Fourteen County Line has been finally defeated. Hereafter the only division sought for should be on the Five County Line. It can be carried. F.

JOHN ALLEN, "the wickedest man in New York," has been arrested and held to answer, on the charge of keeping a resort for thieves and prostitutes. His "reconstruction," like that of the Southern States, did not last long.

COLD weather is setting in, and the only way to provide against colds, rheumatism, &c. is to provide warm and comfortable clothing, which can be had in abundance, of good quality, and at cheap rates by calling at Chamberlin's new clothing Store in Hartman's Block. Buy while goods are cheap, and before the increased demand raises prices. *

SELLING off at reduced prices—L. T. Sharpless will offer for a few weeks at very low prices to close out his entire stock consisting of dry goods of all kinds, notions, hoop skirts, boots and shoes and gaiters of all kinds; hats and caps, queensware, stoneware, baskets of all kinds, &c., &c. To all who desire to make money we say give him a call as a great many goods will be sold below cost.

SUICIDE.—On Friday morning last between twelve o'clock and daylight, a young girl aged about 22 years, named Sarah Jane Ely, of Mayberry township this county, went to Jacob Swank's Mill dam in the above named township and drowned herself. We have not heard what it was that drove her to the act, further than that she had been much afflicted, with depression of spirits.—Danville Intelligencer.

ON Thursday evening Capt. Brockway of Columbia County, a veteran of the late war, and now editor of the Bloomsburg Columbian made his opening speech for the campaign at Seymour Hall. Capt. Brockway is one of the most effective and pleasant speakers it has ever been our good fortune to hear. He deals in incontrovertible facts and figures, and the absence of all bombast and intolerance in his manner of speaking gives him that hold upon his hearers which affords the best assurance of success.—Wayne Co. Herald.

TROT AT BLOOMSBURG.—At the last day of the Columbia county fair, held at Bloomsburg, (Friday,) Mr. F. A. Page, of Wilkes-Barre, took a $50 purse trotting his "Warrior" against "Prince George." He took the first heat in 2:37; the second in 2:37; in the third heat the driver of Prince George drove against Page's sulkey, which was on the inside, tipping it over and spilling out the driver, Peter Eckroth, of Wilkes-Barre, on account of which the Prince took the heat; the fourth heat and the purse were taken by Warrior, in 2:38. Mr. Eckroth was universally praised for his skillful driving. Scranton Rep.

The City Election.

THE return Judges of the city met yesterday, and after canvassing the vote of the several wards, cast on Tuesday last, gave certificates of election to the following Democrats, with the annexed majorities:

Daniel M. Fox, Mayor, majority 1,838.

John M. Melloy, Receiver of Taxes, majority 238.

George Getz, City Controller, majority 728.

Thomas J. Barger, Solicitor, majority 884.

Major David P. Weaver, City Commissioner, majority 973.

Furman Sheppard, District Attorney, majority 1,275.

Albert W. Fletcher, Clerk of Court of Common Pleas, majority 631.

Thomas Greenbank, Associate Judge of the District Court, majority 125.

From the above it will be seen that the whole Democratic City and County ticket is elected with the exception of the Hon. William L. Hirst, our candidate for President Judge of the District Court, who has been counted out by an alleged majority of 25 against him, by the Radical wire-workers and manipulators.—Age.

Bloomsburg, August 16, 1867.

CLOTHES BY MACHINERY.

The undersigned would respectfully call the attention of the public, to his new and approved method of making clothes by a system based upon mathematical principles, which renders it impossible to be otherwise than perfect, accurate

He claims for this method the following advantages.

FIRST,

Perfect pressure.

SECOND.

A saving of two thirds of the time usually taken to cut out the cloth.

THIRD.

A fit to measure and figures as to insure a good fit.

FOURTH.

That it does away with the necessity of being measured more than once, as often is the case from the misapprehension or mistake of a measurer.

He would urge the public to call & be satisfied, is satisfied that it will give perfect satisfaction. He will be happy to exhibit and explain its working at any time to visitors.

Farmer's Department.

Gossip about Fowls.

AMONG the abstracts of returns of the agricultural societies of Massachusetts for 1861, edited by the Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture and published by the authority of the State, is a prize from Norfolk county, "On the Breeding and Management of Poultry." The writer, besides saying that the farmer has but four breeds to select from, if he wishes to arrive at the maxium degree of profit, namely: the Black Spanish, the Hamburg, the Dorking and the Game, also the Shanghae, Cochin China, Chittigong and Brahma Pootra—are almost worthless except as a cross with the common barn-yard fowl. They are generally poor layers, clumsy, although persistent and indispensable sitters, and their flesh is coarse and ill-flavored."

Without undertaking to disparage the four breeds which that writer places above all others, we dissent from his classification. We are surprised to see how low he puts the Brahma Pootra in scale of value. If what he wrote of this bird was true in 1864, a great change has come over its merits since that time.

We are inclined to think that the Brahma Pootra stands at the head of all other fowls in public favor to-day Massachusetts. During the summer and fall we observed them in many towns. We saw some large and very fine flocks, particularly in Cambridge, Arlington, Lexington, Lincoln, and other towns in that neighborhood. They were about farm-houses, were at large in the fields, and were confined in yards and pens. On one trip through these towns we saw one flock of Black Spanish alone, but but other than this we nowhere saw a single distinctive variety kept together except the Brahma, through their might have been many.

The merits of the Brahma Pootra, are that they are the thick-feathered, and therefore keep warm and will lay well in the winter when eggs are the most valuable that their flesh is good for the table, that they weigh well, that their chickens will come to a good weight when quite young, that they begin to lay early and are good layers, and that they are contented and easily kept. This is our experience, and we have not heard a person who has tried the experiment of keeping them who has condemned them. It is true we find them heavy, clumsy fowls, and persistent and rather clumsy sitters, but they make up for this in their fidelity to their brood which they never desert or neglect. Their eggs are large, and always command a higher price when their weight and value are known. They are easily housed or yarded, and healthy under confinement, and, when allowed to roam, wander about contentedly and quietly, and generally do as little harm as any fowl can be expected to do at large. Besides this, a flock of light Brahmas, with their uniform neck hackles and general similarity of tinge of feathers, is an ornament to any place. It costs a good deal more to keep them, we are aware, than some of the smaller breeds, but they make up for this in the size of their eggs and increased weight of flesh.

We do not suppose that this breed has improved much since 1864, when it was condemned in such wholesale terms, but that it was then spoken of without sufficient experience, and that its value has since been more generally tested, and has become well known. Indeed in 1864 it had friends, for H. G. White wrote of it in the Country Gentleman of August 4th, as follows:

"After several years' experience, I find this variety well adapted to the purposes for which fowls are kept.

"They possess size, beauty and hardiness in a good degree, and are very prolific. Their eggs, which are large, surpass all others in richness, and like most fowls with light plumage and yellow legs, their flesh is of good quality. They excel all others as winter layers."

S. M. Saunders, in his "Domestic Poultry," says of this breed:

"As a useful and hardy fowl it is unsurpassed. They are excellent layers of good sized eggs.

"I have no hesitation in pronouncing them the most useful of fowls for the American farm-yard."

And this, we think, is generally the to which those have arrived conclusion who have sufficient experience to pronounce a reliable opinion on the subject.

We think each of the various breeds of fowls has some merits, according to the different wants of their owner and his manner of treatment, and by their preferences are probably most generally governed. But, taking all things together, we believe the Brahma Pootras will meet the most common wants, satisfy the most common requirements, and adapt themselves to the most common circumstances of those who desire to raise fowls for amusement, for eggs or for market.—Ruralist, Mass.

Pork.

In selecting swine for fattening purposes, it is safest not to make choice of long backs or hollow ones. These may in time, become large hogs, but it will take much corn or other food to fatten them well. Generally, hogs, which when fattened, will weigh from three to four hundred pounds, are the most desirable pork, either for domestic use, or for the market. The practice of selecting in early spring, plump-built pigs at from four or six weeks old, and making them fat as possible by Thanksgiving week, is to be commended. Two such pigs may easily be made to weigh twenty or twenty-five scores and as these are not subject to the cost of wintering over, but are kept only thro' the vernal season, when vegetables are plenty and other means of feeding are at hand, the cost of keeping two such swine will not equal that of supporting one hog a year or eighteen months to make him weigh five hundred pounds. The last two pigs which we raised were dropped in April. They were slaughtered late in November, and their united weight was six hundred and eighteen pounds nearly of an equal size.

Some say that pig pork, being young and tender, does not spend as well, or last as long, as the flesh of old hogs. It may be so; one reason however may be that, being sweet and tender, the members of a family are more disposed to partake of it than a different kind.

We have known some dairy women who had the knack of making butter that would last the family a long time; indeed one pound would linger as long upon the table as two pounds of sweet butter.

Most housekeepers in every village can conveniently keep one pig through summer and autumn from the refuse of their gardens and the waste of their tables. The purchase of two or three bushels of Indian corn one month before the slaughtering and given them partly in shape of scalded meal, may be actual cost required. And a well fattened, plump sweet pig of ten scores, about thanksgiving time, is no unacceptable contribution to the meat room, or the cellar.

For The Young Folks.

How Janet Spent Her Money.

JANET came down stairs in blue calico dress, her freshly combed hair tied back with a blue ribbon, and her little straw hat swinging on her arm while her eyes sparkled and her rosy mouth was all wreathed with happy smiles.

"Papa, papa, are you most ready?" she exclaimed.

"Presently my daughter."

Janet looked at the canary in his cage and the white kitten sleeping in the sunshine at the open door, and the tall cinnamon roses nodding their heads at the south window, and wondered if they were half as happy as she was.

For little Janet was going to the village store with her father, to buy something all for herself. In the pocket of her stiffly-starched blue calico dress was a rustling, new ten cent stamp that she had earned herself, by shelling peas and picking strawberries at a cent for every dozen pints. All the week Janet had worked busily, and that morning when her mother gave her the money, she said, with a smile of approbation:

"You have earned it my daughter."

"Papa, what would you advise me to buy?" asked Janet, as she trotted along by her father's side holding to one of his fingers.

"I should advise you to suit yourself, my little girl," said her father. You have worked for the money, and you have the right to spend it just as you please."

"I am very fond of candy," said Janet, reflectively, "but candy is soon eaten up, and then it is gone—and if I bought a china doll, I couldn't eat that up."

"No," said her father, smiling; "their would certainly be that advantage on the china doll side of the question."

"Or I might buy a picture book. Tom says there are some beautiful books at Rigney's store."

"Or you might buy a new ribbon to tie your hair with," suggested her father.

Janet laughed, and shook her curls, and said she had plenty of ribbons already.

As Janet Lenox entered the village store, another little girl slunk in also—a very different looking child.

Ann Bryan was ragged and dirty, with wild, uncombed hair, and black eyes that shone cunningly beneath their lashes. She was about Janet's age, but the two children scarcely seemed as if they belonged to the same class of humanity.

The storekeeper's face was very bright and cheerful as he welcomed Mr. Lenox and his daughter, but it altered to a suspicious frown as he turned to Ann.

"Well, what's wanting now?" he demanded shortly and sharply.

Ann with a sulky defiant look, drew a bottle from beneath her aporn, and muttered that her father wanted three cents worth of rum.

"Have you got the money?"

Ann pushed forward three rusty coppers.

Little Janet had laid her new ten cent stamp on the counter, and was busy looking at the toys and picture-books that lay in the glass show-case.

Mr. Rigney went to draw the liquid poison, and when he returned he looked pleasantly at Janet.

"Well, little lady have you made up your mind yet?"

"Yes sir," said Janet. "I should like to buy that little book with the picture of the bear on the cover. Will ten cents be enough?"

"I guess so," said the storekepper, good-humoredly, as he wrapped up the book in a peice of paper and tied it with a pink twine.

Meanwhile Janet looked for her money—it was gone.

"Why," she exclaimed, "what can have become of my ten cent stamp? I am sure I laid it on the counter.

They looked on the counter, and on the floor, and behind the barrels, but nowhere was the missing money to be found.

Suddenly Mr. Rigney turned upon Ann, and said, sharply:

"You little thief, you've got it!"

"No, I have not," contradicted Ann, stoutly, though a guilty flush rose to her cheek, and in the same instant Janet saw, half hidden in the folds of the dirty handkerchief she wore round her neck, the end of her ten cent stamp.

"Confess at once, you little imp, or I'll have you sent to jail!" cried Mr. Rigney.

Ann burst into a loud howl, still denying her guilt.

Janet's heart ached for the forlorn, friendless girl, thief though she was.

"No; don't be cross to her," interposed Janet. "Let her go. Perhaps the wind blew the money away."

Ann took advantage of her opportunity and slipped out of the store, glad enough to escape, while Janet took hold of her father's hand.

"Come, papa."

"What! without your book?"

"Mr. Rigney says he will keep it for me until I have earned another ten cents."

So little Janet bore her disappointment as philosophically as she could.

It was that same evening, as she was running down through the woods to get some raspberries for tea, that she saw Ann Bryan sitting on a fallen log, all alone, with rather a mournful expression on her face, and the ten cent stamp on her lap. Ann started when she saw her, and would have taken to her heels, but Janet put her plump arms round her neck and detained her.

"Ann, don't run away," she whispered, softly. "I am not angry with you."

Ann Bryan burst into tears. She was not used to kind words or gentle actions, and she had a heart, although it was crusted over by years of neglect and abuse.

"I'll give you the ten cent stamp, Ann," cried Janet softly. "I can soon earn another one."

"No," sobbed Ann, putting the bit of rustling paper into Janet's hands. "I stole your ten cent stamp to buy candy with, but I didn't care for candy after I had got it. I'm sorry I stole it Janet Lenox."

Janet had always heard everybody say what a bad, wicked girl Ann Bryan was; but she almost felt as if she loved Ann at that moment.

"Ann" she said if you will come to my house to-morrow, I will give you some candy my mother bought in New York for me when she was there last. And you must keep the ten cent stamp. I said I would give it to you."

Ann took the money with a bewildered look and followed Janet with her eyes as the little girl vanished down the glen-path.

"I love you Janet Lenox!" was all she said; but it came straight from her heart.

All the picture books that were ever printed would not have made Janet half so happy as those five words.

Years have passed; Janet is a woman now, and Ann Bryan is her faithful, loving servant, trusted with all that the house contains. But she dates her better life from the moment in which little Janet Lenox put her arms softly round her neck and whispered kind words in the solitude of the green and quiet glen.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

HOOFLAND'S

GERMAN BITTERS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

Hoofland's German Tonic.

Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Great Remedies

FOR ALL DISEASES OF THE

LIVER, STOMACH, or

DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is compounded of the pure juices, (or as they are medicinally term ed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entire ly free from Alcoholic admixture of any kind.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

Hoofland's German Bitters.

In cases of nervous depression, when some alcoholic stimulus is necessary,

Hoofland's German Tonic

Should be used.

The Bitters or the Tonic are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues.

The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is liable to derangement. The result of which is, that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Diseases of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

RESULTING FROM ANY CAUSE WHATEVER; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, INDUCED BY SEVERE LABOR, HARDSHIPS, EXPOSURE, FEVERS, ETC.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole System, the Appetite is Strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

Persons Advanced in Life,

And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of the BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.

It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own expression, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN

Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes

Philadelphia, March 10, 1857.

"I find 'Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good tonic, useful in all cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system.

"Yours truly,

"GEO. W. WOODWARD."

Hon. James Thompson,

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1856

"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it.

"Yours, with respect,

"JAMES THOMPSON."

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, D.D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicine, but, regarding the puffing system as one of my especial detestations, I have in all cases declined; but, having witnessed in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the excellence of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I deem it a duty I owe to my fellow-creatures, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is one of the most valuable preparations. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,

J. H. KENNARD,

Eighth, below Coates St.

From Rev. E. D. Fendall,

Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.

I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.

Yours truly,

E. D. FENDALL.
